

Ugbrooke House & Gardens

Ugbrooke House has a fascinating history covering 900 years, originally featuring in the Domesday book of 1086.

Its outstanding Adam interiors and unique external features remain, with the house containing many fine paintings, furniture, beautiful needlework and ceramics.

But above all, Ugbrooke remains the private home of the Clifford family who are delighted and privileged to be able to share the house's history and welcoming ambience.

A 3,000 acre estate near Newton Abbot encapsulates Capability Brown-designed parkland, a fernery, walled gardens and meandering paths through enchanting woodland and peaceful lakes.
